PROFILE

I'm a Frontend Developer with three years of hands-on programming experience. I have spent the last couple of years working on applications for the web. Emphasizing architecture, scalability, design, user interface, and testing. I have worked successfully with teams, and start-ups to visually transform their ideas and create excellent products that meet organizational goals and increase user conversion.

I seek positions that offer challenges, career prospects, and development, achieving set targets and organizational objectives.
